

OLEN Cod.1708

A linen-forward construction enriched with wool shapes the foundation of this textile. Yarns marked by subtle shifts in thickness introduce depth and nuance, allowing the fabric to reveal the freshness of linen alongside the fullness and soft comfort of wool.

Tactility is central to the character of OLEN. Its weave is shaped by slubbed yarns whose gentle irregularities create a rhythmic movement as they cross the fabric, giving the surface a sense of life and natural variation. The hand is particular and engaging, smooth in one moment and more substantial in the next, forming a rich material presence suited to upholstery, seating, cushions, and heavier drapery applications.

The palette unfolds in families that echo the nature of the weave. Soft neutrals such as ivory, sand, fawn, and warm stone bring forward the natural variation of the yarn. Greens move from moss to loden, followed by aquas and blues that shift from mineral and denim toward deeper inky tones, each revealing layered color interactions within the slubbed construction. Golden hues appear in straw, honey, and muted saffron; terracotta, clay, rosewood, and soft coral introduce warmth to the weave without overpowering its structure.

OLEN brings linen and wool together with a focus on texture, depth, and material expression.
